

TIGER SHARK

Scientific name:
Galeocerdo cuvier

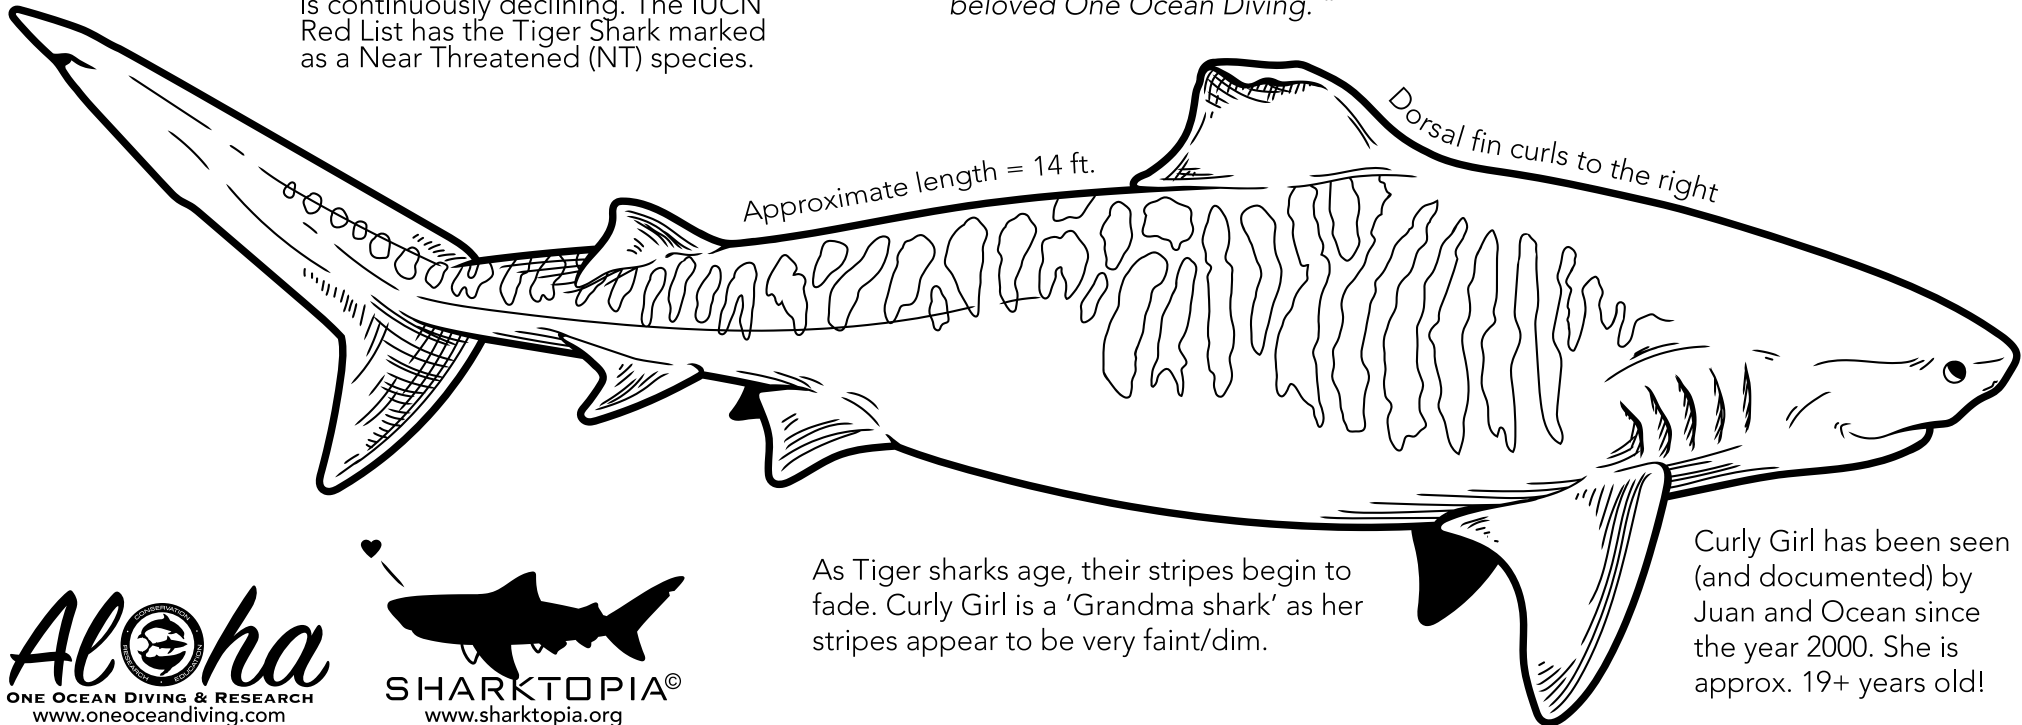

Curly Girl

Shark ID #305

"Hi there! My name is Curly Girl, but it might as well be Cupid! In 2006, Ocean Ramsey met her match (Juan), but she wanted fate (and nature) to step in and solidify her path. Juan and Ocean agreed that if a Tiger shark showed up on the following Wednesday, they would create a life together. That's where I come in! I swam around Ocean and Juan as their minds cleared and their hearts became one. They've since become Mr. and Mrs. Shark; continuing to fight for all of us through their beloved One Ocean Diving. "

The global population of Tiger sharks is continuously declining. The IUCN Red List has the Tiger Shark marked as a Near Threatened (NT) species.

As Tiger sharks age, their stripes begin to fade. Curly Girl is a 'Grandma shark' as her stripes appear to be very faint/dim.

Curly Girl has been seen (and documented) by Juan and Ocean since the year 2000. She is approx. 19+ years old!
